Dear The Federal Communications Commission,

I do not want to pay more for my telephone service! I urge you to reject a flat fee proposal that would change how contributions are made to the Universal Service Fund. I am concerned that this proposal could make my current service unaffordable.

I have a yearly plan that cost me one hundred dollars per year for a hundred minutes; unused minutes accumulate and are added to the following year. So now you want to tax me at the same rate as someone who uses one hundred times that amount. Do you think businesses will benefit from this; their usage is already written off as tax deductible. Those obnoxious individuals who can't seem to remove their phones from their ears will now find it cheaper to pollute the air-waves.

If you want to do something constructive put a variable rate on usage and increase the tax for individuals who drive with one hand and have the other stuck to their ear. I'm quite sure the doppler shift from a moving transmitter could signal a rate increase. Think of the savings from reduced accidents you would be responsible for. On the other hand think of the accidents you would be responsible for if you make it cheaper for those idiots.

I use my wireless phone for safety, security and convenience. I urge you to reject the proposal to move the USF collection system to a flat-fee.

Keep the USF Fair!

Sincerely,

Charles E. Truskolasky
